

Detailed Chapter Contents

Introduction: Bringing Order from Chaos

Purpose and Methods

Organization and Structure

Audiences and Timeliness

Assumptions and Outcomes

Chapter 1: Regional Geography

Three Ways of Perceiving Regions

 Territorial Perspective

 Functional Perspective

 Administrative Perspective

Census Geography: A Powerful But Confusing Framework

 The Basic Geographical Hierarchy

 The Extended Geographical Hierarchy

 Metropolitan and Micropolitan Statistical Areas

 Urban and Rural Areas

 State-Specific Geographies

Considerations When Defining a Region

Regional Geography: A Summary

Chapter 2: Regional Economic Growth

Economic Growth as Economic Output

 Uses and Limitations of Output Measures

From Growth to Development

 Balancing Growth and Development

A Model of a Regional Economy

Regional Economic Accounting

National Economic Accounting

Regional Economic Accounting

GDP by State and Metropolitan Area

State and Local Area Personal Income and Employment

Regional Input-Output Modeling System

Regional Economic Growth: A Summary

Chapter 3: Theories of Regional Economic Development

Economic Development: A Practice in Search of a Theory

The Practice of Economic Development

The Theory of Economic Development

Theoretical Aspects of Economic Development

Theoretical Models of Economic Development

Economic Base Models

Location Models

Equilibrium Theories: Attraction Models

Equilibrium Theories: Central Place Models

Disequilibrium Theories: Growth Pole Models

Disequilibrium Theories: Cumulative Causation Models

Innovation and Entrepreneurship Models

Entrepreneurship Models

Creativity Models

Production Models

Product Cycle Models

Cluster Development Models

Theories of Regional Economic Development: A Summary

Chapter 4: Data Sources, Concepts, and Calculations

Sources of Regional Economic and Social Data

U.S. Census Bureau

U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis

U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics

Other Agencies

Data Concepts

Absolute and Relative Quantities

Change and Growth

Time Effects

Financial Values

Statistical Calculations

What Are the Analytical Problems, Definitions, and Measures?

Which Kinds of Data Does a Study Use?

Which Statistical Tools Are Being Used?

Descriptive Statistics

Inferential Statistics

What Is the Purpose of the Analysis?

Data Sources, Concepts, and Calculations: A Summary

Chapter 5: Demographics

Differentiating Demography and Demographics

Sources of Demographic Data

National Data Sources

U.S. Census Bureau

Decennial Census of Population and Housing

Population Estimates Program

Population Projections Program

American Community Survey

Current Population Survey

State Data Sources

State Health Agencies

Labor Market Information Agencies

State Data Center Program

Essential Demographic Concepts

Population Size

Households, Persons, and Families

Population Cohorts

Population Change

Natural Change: Fertility and Mortality

Net Migration

Causes of Migration

Population Distribution

Population Composition

Sex and Age

Race and Ethnicity

Place of Birth and Citizenship

Language

Education

Disability

Demographics: A Summary

Chapter 6: Regional Business Structure

Taking Care of Business: Questions and Concepts

What Is a Business? Establishments, Enterprises, and Firms

Legal Organization and Tax Status

Employer and Nonemployer Businesses

How Big Are Businesses? Business Size

What Do Businesses Do? Industries and Products

How Does a Business Do What It Does? Business Operations

Sources of Regional Business Data

U.S. Census Bureau

Economic Census

Nonemployer Statistics

County Business Patterns

Statistics of U.S. Businesses

Survey of Business Owners

Census of Governments

Business Dynamics Statistics

U.S. Small Business Administration

Internal Revenue Service

Piecing the Puzzle Together: The Business Structure of the Milwaukee MSA

What Is a Business? Defining the Business Universe of the Milwaukee MSA

Nonemployers and Employers

Employer Firms and Establishments

How Big Are Businesses? Business Size in the Milwaukee MSA

What Do Businesses Do: The Industry Structure of the Milwaukee MSA

How Do Business Do What They Do? Business Operations in the Milwaukee MSA

Business Structure: A Summary

Chapter 7: Labor Markets

Defining the Labor Force

Labor Force Concepts

Measures of Labor Utilization

Sources of Labor Market Information

Core Concepts

Persons and Jobs

Place of Residence and Place of Work

Data Methods

Data Sources

Current Population Survey

Local Area Unemployment Statistics

Current Employment Statistics

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

Other Data Sources

Occupational Structure

Labor Market Dynamics

Job Openings and Labor Turnover Survey

Business Employment Dynamics

Local Employment Dynamics

Labor Force Projections

Labor Markets: A Summary

Chapter 8: Income, Wealth, and Living Standards

Income Definitions and Data

Defining Income

Personal Income

Sources of Personal Income Data

Money Income

Sources of Money Income Data

Personal and Money Income in the Denver MSA

Sources of Income

Income Components

Data Sources

Employment Earnings

Employment Earnings Data

Hourly Wages

Hourly Wage Data

Uses of Income

Wealth

Income, Wealth, and Living Standards: A Summary

Chapter 9: Income Distribution, Inequality, and Deprivation

Income Distribution

Income Inequality

Concentration Ratio

Gini Coefficient

Economic Mobility

Income Deprivation

The Federal Poverty Level

Poverty in the Denver MSA

Limitations of the Federal Poverty Level

The Supplemental Poverty Measure

Other Poverty Measures

Alternative Methods for Measuring Income Deprivation

Relative Measures

Subjective Measures

Capability Deprivation

The American Human Development Index

Income Distribution, Inequality, and Deprivation: A Summary

Conclusion: Running the Numbers

Habit One: Know What Needs to Be Known and Why

Habit Two: Learn Regional Geography

Habit Three: Befriend Essential Data Resources

Habit Four: Brush Up on Basic Math and Statistics

Habit Five: Appreciate the Art of “Satisficing”

Habit Six: Tap the Inner Liberal Arts Student

Habit Seven: Remember the Public Purpose

A Final Word